

What I learned about
The Stone Ages and Early Cultures

Below are questions similar to those you answered at the beginning of the unit, The Stone Ages and Early Cultures. Take a moment to review your own responses. When finished, take notes below on new ideas / information you learned. How can you relate to what you learned about the people of the Stone Age?

Have fun... and remember... you are a part of history! Your experiences matters! ☺

Tools

What types of tools were used in the Stone Age to build things?

If someone of the Stone Age were searching for a lost item what tool(s) might they use?

What type of tools would someone from the Stone Age use to search for an item buried under the ground?
What tools would an archaeologist use when looking for artifacts?

How do you think the archaeologists felt when they discovered bones of ancient people? Why do you think they felt this way?

If you were traveling with a nomadic band from the Stone Age and were trying to survive, what would experience?

How would you get food?

How would you make a shelter?

How would you make your own clothing?

How would you protect yourself and help protect your group?

Communication

How did early-humans communicate with their friends? (verbal and non-verbal)

Why did early-humans create art? What does their artwork (or specific project) mean?

What materials did early-humans use to create art?

How did early humans communicate with others who didn't speak the same language them?

Ancestors

What is the name of the first early-human ancestor? How long ago as "Lucy" alive? What questions would you ask "Lucy" if possible?

How did early-humans remember their ancestors? How does your family pass down the information from one generation to the next? (pictures/stories/etc)

Migration

What country is believed to be the home of the first early-human? What continents did early-humans migrate to over time?

What is the last continent they settled in? Why do you think they settled in South America last?

Agriculture

Describe the experience the early-humans had with farming and fire.

What type of food was farmed in southwest Asia? What types of animals were raised?